Forecast For Strathclyde
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 09 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly dry and bright this morning. Rain spreading east later.

Today:
Rather cloudy start with a few early showers, these dying out this morning with sunny spells developing. However cloud increases through the afternoon with outbreaks of rain spreading east from mid-afternoon. Freshening southerly winds. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Tonight:
Occasionally heavy rain soon clearing east this evening with clear spells and showers following. Risk of a touch of frost and perhaps some icy patches in sheltered spots. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Friday:
A bright day with sunny spells and showers, these may be heavy at times, especially in the west. Occasionally fresh westerly winds easing. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Morning rain then showers on Saturday with fresh southwesterly winds. Further showers Sunday then evening rain with coastal gales, clearing to showers again on Monday with winds easing.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.